

Dear Anne,

I was very much relieved by your letter. I hope there may be some letters from them some where. I was much disturbed as you may suppose at Caroline's note, but I walked up to it man fashion and invited Abby to take tea with us Sunday. Mary Fifield and Lucretia came too, we got along very well. Abby I like very much, I think if all our agents were as efficient something would be done. She lectured Saturday evening to a full house. Sunday evening Mr Perkins was applied for, but was refused, so Abby lectured again in the "Little Bethel". Mrs Cook sat with her in the pulpit the first night and Mrs Fifield the second, Abby lectured upon the Church, and I never heard a person speak better upon the subject, she is very much improved. Monday Mary F and Abby went around to get money she got about 9 ¢, in the afternoon Mr Spear came and carried her down to the old Spain school house, where she lectured, staid all night, and got 6 subscribers for the Standard.

she ~~staid~~ in Newmouth till Tuesday afternoon when Lewis Lood, came from Abington and carried her up there. You will get home in time to attend if you wish a grand ^{Temperance} supper to be held at Wales' hall Mr May is coming over Dr Jewell and several others there is to be a bobery at Mr Perkins meeting house in the afternoon, a band of music and what not and then they are to march to supper, and from the supper to a bobery in the Universalist Church.
Mr Perkins party are very much opposed to it, more particularly at this time. I send Deborah's shawl and a gown she wanted. Harvey's things you must take out for him. Tell him to write I should be glad to hear of his whereabouts. Aunt Phebe is better, but still ~~the~~ rather poorly, Aunt Priscilla much the same, all the rest of us well which in these sickly times is saying a good deal. Sarah Lood was carried Monday to Worcester, bring out Moore and thing readable you can lay your hands on. get Ann's shoes. yours in bonds. Lucia Weston.

Newmouth Wednesday night.

Miss Anne Warren Weston.
